Working with school districts and individual schools to increase the percentage of Kindergarten students who are asked for an assessment and receive one would be an important way to support the systematic collection of comprehensive data in the county.