SECTION B: REFERENCES

The following is a compilation of all references used during the development of Section B (Human Factors Program Guidance) of the Safety Program/Safety Plan Guidance Document.

Arthur D. Little, Inc. – Facility Level Safety Management Audit Protocol, 1996

Bridges, Williams (December 1997), “Create Effective Safety Procedures and Operating Manuals”, Chemical Engineering Progress.

Bridges, Williams (2005), “Writing Effective Operating and Maintenance Procedures”

CCPS (2006), Guidelines for Mechanical Integrity Systems

CCPS (2007), Guidelines for Risk Based Process Safety

CCPS (1992), International Conference on Hazard Identification and Risk Analysis, Human Factors and Human Reliability in Process Safety

CCPS/AIChE (1987), International Symposium on Preventing Major Chemical Accidents

CMA, (1990), A Manager’s Guide to Reducing Human Errors (CMA is now the American Chemistry Council ACC)

CMA (1998), Management of Safety and Health During Organizational Change. (CMA is now the American Chemistry Council ACC)

Eastman-Kodak, Ergonomic Design for People at Work, Vol. 1.

EQE International – Process Hazard Analysis Checklist: Human Factors, 1996

Kirwan, Barry, “Evolving Human Factors in Offshore Operations”.
JBF Associates, Inc. Course Materials for Understanding Human Error.

Mihall, Belletti (February 1999), “Adult Learning Styles and Training Methods”, FDIC ADR Presentation Handouts.

Nimmo, Ian, (November 2002), “Determining Operator Workload and Console Loading is more than a simple loop count”.

Primatech Notes, (September 1995), “Here’s a More Effective Approach for Addressing Human Factors in PHA’s”.

University of California Berkeley Ergonomics Lab, Draft, “Computer Use Checklist”.

