The Path to Recovery

The PhotoVoice Empowerment Project coordinated by Contra Costa Behavioral Health Services Office for Consumer Empowerment in collaboration with the Committee for Social Inclusion. Funded by the Mental Health Services Act (MHSA).
The PhotoVoice Empowerment Project

Each year, a piece of artwork from the PhotoVoice Empowerment Project is selected to be displayed on the cover of the annual Mental Health Services Act (MHSA) Three Year Plan. The PhotoVoice Empowerment Project enables consumers to produce artwork that is personal and allows for expression through poetry and narrative. The artwork speaks to the prejudice and discrimination that people with behavioral health challenges face.

The PhotoVoice Empowerment Project also empowers and enables consumers with behavioral health challenges to record and reflect their community’s strengths and concerns, promote critical dialogue about personal and community issues, and reach policymakers to effect change. Special thanks to PhotoVoice participants for sharing their knowledge and artwork. The poem below accompanies the picture on the cover and was written by a PhotoVoice participant.

The Broken Road

This skateboard is me; the road is the path of life. I’ve learned that the path of life has many cracks and turns and is not easy to skate on, like it’s not easy to move when you are sad. The cracks and turns of mental illness are what you have no control over. When you have a hard life you may want to stop, to just quit, but you can’t. If you stop skating when you hit the cracks, you will get nowhere. Falling into one crack might save you from falling into an even bigger one later on. You need to get back up and try again. You can’t focus on what you did; you need to focus on what you’re going to do. You need to know that every turn you take will get you closer to a smooth, straight path.

A very big crack is school, where some people get picked on. Depression is what I struggle with; my ADHD makes it hard to focus. When I was younger I just thought I was stupid, but now I know what it is. I go on this path of life blind, making wrong turns everywhere, getting the label “EMO” and tend to believe there is no one to turn to. Some people fall and quit, while others get back up and prepare for another fall. The fact is, if you quit, you won’t know what to do if you come across it again. I know suicide will not be a smart path to take. In my life I know that I can’t give up; if I keep going I will eventually get to where I need to go. Most people lack knowledge; family and friends don’t accept them so they think they are alone.

Just like we can learn from the cracks and turns riding our skateboards, we can learn about the positive elements of mental illness. Mental illness may seem like all it does is trip you up, but there is also a lot to learn. We need positive people to look up to. Facebook, TV, radio and other social networks teenagers often go to can be our skateboards for sharing the good side of mental illness and educating people so they understand that mental illness is not a bad thing.
